Yukon Mourns The Passing of an Icon

Born and raised in the Yukon, author Pierre Berton brought life to the history of the Klondike.

Pierre Berton, the prolific author and popular television personality, died November 30, 2004 of heart failure in Toronto. He was 84.

Berton was born in Whitehorse, July 12, 1920 to Frank and Laura Beatrice Berton. Berton spent the first two years of his life living in Whitehorse before his father, a mining recorder and former gold seeker, was transferred back to Dawson. Evidenced by his writing and films, Dawson held a special place in Berton's heart. His first important books were The Mysterious North (1956) and Klondike (1958), a narrative of the Klondike Gold Rush. He won the governor general's award for creative non-fiction for both books. He would later receive a third Governor General's award for The Last Spike (1972).

Klondike came only four years after his mother published her charming story of life in the Yukon. I Married the Klondike is a fascinating piece of social history that depicts life in the Klondike during the early decades of the Twentieth Century. The family left the Yukon in 1932, but Pierre continued to return. While attending university he returned to work in Klondike Mining Camps and during the summer of 1971 he brought one of his daughters and one son to follow in his father's footsteps over the Chilkoot trail. His childhood home in Dawson is now a writers' retreat where one writer is allowed to live and, outside one public lecture, is allowed to do whatever they want. Berton house has produced many new writers over the years.

After leaving the Yukon, Pierre worked on the Vancouver News-Herald (beginning in 1942), the Vancouver Sun (1945-47), Maclean's (beginning in 1947) and on the Toronto Star (1958-62). From the late 1950s to the early 90s, he was a staple of Canadian TV as host of his own shows or as a panelist. Pierre also served as Chancellor of Yukon College.

In addition to the Governor Generals Awards he also received numerous honorary degrees, over 30 literary awards and was a named Companion to the Order of Canada (1986). He is a member of Canada's Walk of Fame, having been inducted in 1998. In The Greatest Canadian, he was voted #31 in the list of great Canadians. His most recent publication, Prisoners of the North (2004) was his fiftieth book.

Pierre's success in popularizing Canadian history may never be matched. He will be sadly missed.

The Yukon Heritage Resources (YHRB) welcomes the opportunity to provide YHMA members with an update of our recent activities. At the Board's September '04 meeting, the Board reviewed the revised Yukon Museum Strategy and "Museums Strategy Implementation" report and recommended adoption of the strategy.

Minister Taylor responded that based on the recommendations that the Board has brought forward; she will be presenting the strategy to Cabinet for her colleagues' consideration. It was the wish of the Museum advisory committee that the document be a government-wide policy. Minister Taylor thanked the Board for the efforts and hard work over the last two years towards the development of a comprehensive museums strategy that will benefit all Yukoners for many years to come.

At the Board's three-day meeting held in late November, the Board had a full agenda, which included the review and evaluation of eight applications to the Yukon Historic Resources Fund (YHRF) and two nominations for territorial historic site designation – the Yukon Sawmill Co. Office and the Dawson Telegraph Office - and a day of strategic planning.

The Yukon Historic Resources Fund was established to help support the objectives of the Yukon Historic Resources Act related to historic resources. The fund provides financial support for projects in archaeology, paleontology, community museums and heritage/cultural centres, historic sites, native language preservation and place names.

The fund is intended to support specific projects, not core programs or O&M requirements for long-term projects or programs. The YHRF may fund a maximum of 50% of project costs up to a maximum of $10,000. This program is administered by Cultural Services, Heritage Resources Unit, and applications are forwarded to YHRB for review, evaluation and recommendation to the minister on what projects and how much to fund, based on the guidelines. In turn, the minister's department notifies applicants accordingly and draws up a contribution agreement with successful applicants.

YHRF is funded by interest from an initial $1,000,000 investment by the Government of Yukon. Interest is made available at the end of each fiscal year – 50% is put back into the fund and 50% is made available for projects. The interest available for projects from the 2003/2004 fiscal year (for November 2004 deadline) was approximately $36,000. The amount of interest available from fiscal year 2004/05 will be available in April 2005 for the fall 2005 deadline. Forms and guidelines on this program are available through the Yukon government website.

The Board's review, evaluation and recommendation of nominations for territorial historic site designation is specified under the Historic Resources Act. Following from the definition under the Act, a historic site is a location at which is found a work or assembly of works of human endeavour or of nature that is of value for its archaeological, palaeontological, prehistoric, historic, scientific or aesthetic features. Designation under the Act is meant for sites that are important to the history of the Yukon as a whole. The two buildings reviewed by the Board in November were evaluated on the "Built Site" criteria. Sites can also be evaluated under Archaeological, Palaeontological and Landscapes or Cultural Landscapes criteria. The Board sent its recommendations on the two sites to the minister who makes the final decision on designation.

Board member Susan Twist resigned in October 2004. New board member replacements, effective December 22nd are Andre Bourcier of Whitehorse and Joyce Armstrong of Watson Lake. YHRB would like to take this opportunity to welcome the two new board members. Their term is until April 17, 2007. Replacement board members fill out the remaining term of those board members they replace.

Now that YHRB is operating at its full complement of members, a new chair will be selected at the next board meeting scheduled for January 28 and 29. At the January meeting, members will also review the draft budget for 2005/06, language issues, revision of the procedures manual for the nomination process and continue with strategic planning. As well, we look forward to regular updates from the Cultural Services Branch and YHMA.

Our office is located in the historic Taylor House located at 412 Main Street. For those of you who may not have received a copy of our 2003/04 annual report, please stop by the office for a copy. Happy New Year to everyone in the heritage community and we look forward to a prosperous year for heritage.

MILES CANYON HISTORIC RAILWAY SOCIETY

We had a good year this year - a year of transition for us. We are changing from a building society into a full-fledged tourist attraction, open more hours and days than ever before.

The Copperbelt mining museum and rail exhibit was open five days a week this year, completing quite a bit of clean-up and landscaping improvements around the station area and throughout our developing picnic area. The number of visitors to the facility increased this year and our picnic area was used for many birthday parties group meetings, tour bus stops and general lunch breaks by individuals and families. We plan on being open seven days/week next summer and have expansion plans of our displays and picnic area being formulated for this coming season - we intend to develop an attractive, multi-use outdoor facility and improve our indoor static displays over the coming years.

The Waterfront Trolley operation started off with reduced ridership early in the year, likely due to the same reduced tourist traffic experienced by other facilities around Whitehorse, but rebounded as the season progressed. The expansion of the Waterfront Trolley operation north to Spook Creek was approved this year and construction on the rail line began this fall - hopefully being put into operation this coming summer. We operated the Trolley, in support of the downtown businesses, to bring Santa Claus to Main Street prior to Christmas. This experience, along with the expansion north to Spook Creek and the development of the 'Roundhouse' opens lots of opportunities for us to pursue in the coming years.

NEWS FROM THE HERITAGE CANADA FOUNDATION

Heritage places of religious and spiritual meaning are the soul of Canada's cultural landscape. They connect us to ideas about religion, kinship and place that have shaped communities from pre-contact times to the present. This year, the Heritage Canada Foundation is proud to celebrate the Heritage of Faith: Spiritual and Sacred Places, with its Heritage 2005 poster and guidebook. Grouped into four sections Traditional Spiritual Sites, Missions Sacred Places and Early Settlement, and the Architecture of Sacred Places, the 15 spiritual places identified in the guidebook reflect Canada's rich ethnic and religious diversity.

The Heritage 2005 poster will be unveiled at a special ceremony in Ottawa on Heritage Day, Monday, February 21, 2005. At this time, the Foundation will also announce Canada's Top 10 endangered buildings and sites and its five worst losses for 2004. The Foundation looks forward to hearing how your community celebrated Heritage Day!

After completing its own strategic planning exercise in the fall of 2004, the Foundation developed Sharing Insights From Our Recent Strategic Planning Experience: Where to Start and What to Keep in Mind, a brief case study that identifies and answers the essential elements and questions associated with a strategic planning process. The Foundation has recognized that strategic planning is one of the most important – and often overlooked – responsibilities of not-for-profit organizations, and hopes that this document will assist heritage and cultural institutions in their strategic planning exercise. Sharing Insights From Our Recent Strategic Planning Experience is available in hard copy and CD format.

The fall of 2004 also marked the launch of Heritage Canada's Advocacy Action Web site www.advocacyaction which was designed to provide facts and current information on issues relating to the conservation of heritage properties and historic places. The site has been widely accepted by heritage organizations and preservationists across the country. An Advocacy Action Handbook will be available in spring 2005.

For more information about any of the above please visit the Heritage Canada Web site at www.heritagecanada.org
